

Alameda County Community Health Worker Capacity Building Collaborative Goals

A regional team from Alameda County is working to advance the CHW/P workforce with a dual focus on creating better workplaces for CHW/Ps and creating more opportunities for people to become CHW/Ps and for existing ones to advance their skills and careers.

Alameda County's Community Health Worker Capacity Building Collaborative's key goals and partners for 2023 included the following:

Overarching goals:

- Develop consensus-based policies and practices for work environments that provide the supports, resources, and hospitality to successfully recruit and retain CHW/Ps of color whose lived experience mirrors those served.
- Develop and pilot test a model CHW/P apprenticeship program.

Alameda County Collaborative's key partners:

- Alameda Health System & Foundation
- Berkeley City College
- East Bay Innovations
- Community Health Center Network / Alameda Health Consortium
